Upward Bound program hits half-century mark

one of three original college-prep programs

The Upward Bound program at Southwestern Oklahoma State University is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

SWOSU was one of three universities in the state of Oklahoma to have the first programs. The other sites were East Central University and Southeastern Oklahoma State University.

The SWOSU Upward Bound program has served thousands of students in its 50 years. At the height of funding, SWOSU's program had 200 students enrolled each year.

Upward Bound is a federally funded program that aids students who meet certain income guidelines and academic standards to better prepare for college. The program began as part of Lyndon B. Johnson's War on Poverty in 1964. Upward Bound is one of eight TRIO programs facilitated by the U.S. Department of Education that motivates and assists students at different stages in the educational journey.

SWOSU's Director of Upward Bound Jamie Novey said students begin the Upward Bound program as freshmen or sophomores in high school.

The students meet on two Saturdays every month to prepare for the ACT, improve study skills, tour colleges and receive tutoring. During the summer, Upward Bound students spend six weeks on the Weatherford campus living in the residence halls, participating in cultural activities and studying in an academic environment. The summer program allows students to experience a college setting.

When students graduate from high school, their last summer is spent taking five to six hours of college credit at SWOSU. Students take classes in composition and literature, math, chemistry, physics, astronomy, robotics, forensic studies, Spanish, sign language and financial literacy as well as fine arts classes in the evenings.

"The longer students remain in the program, the more likely they are to graduate from high school and enroll in college," Novey said. "Upward Bound students do well in college because they are prepared."

"I'm a product of Upward Bound, and I know that without the program, I wouldn't have gone to college."

--JAMIE NOVEY
UPWARD BOUND DIRECTOR

For many high school students, a college education seems like an impossible dream. Students face a number of barriers that either prevents them from going to college or from being successful if they do go. Novey said the greatest barrier to higher education is the lack of opportunity. Many students are interested in college but do not have the resources and support necessary to make their college experience a successful one.

Novey said she sees real success in the Upward Bound Program and that students gain experience that furthers their potential and leads to positive outcomes.

"I'm a product of Upward Bound," Novey said, "and I know that without the program, I wouldn't have gone to college."

Upward Bound currently serves around 85 students per year. For more information, contact Novey at 580.774.7129.

Caffeine for the campers

Student workers Amber Patterson and Nicholas Bowman fill orders for frappes at the Bulldog Beanery Monday afternoon. The Beanery has been especially busy this week with more than 500 students in grades 7-12 on campus for band camp. Patterson and Bowman said the chocolate chip and caramel frozen drinks are the most popular this week. (Photo by Errikka Branscum)

Camp Duke to bring freshmen to campus

The 2nd annual Camp Duke at Southwestern begins Wednesday, July 16, and continues through Friday, July 18. More than 70 incoming freshmen from Arkansas, California, Kansas, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Texas will attend the camp.

New Student Orientation Coordinator Taler Alexander said Camp Duke features a unique blend of activities designed to help freshmen adjust to university life. The goal of the camp is to inspire a strong sense of pride and comfort for new freshmen at SWOSU. The campers will stay in Oklahoma Hall and eat meals in the cafeteria.

"The interactions campers will have with SWOSU faculty, staff, upper-class student leaders and fellow incoming freshmen will provide them with a strong support system when classes start in August," Alexander said. Special events during the week include a hypnotist, pancake breakfast sponsored by Greek Council, retro-themed dance with DJ Lite Brite in the Skyview Suite at the Pioneer Cellular Event Center, "SWOSU Idol" talent show, sand volleyball tournament, and breakout sessions.

Safe distance training offered for summer

An additional Continuing Education activity has been added for the month of July at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford.

Non-Lethal Safe Distance Training will be offered on the Thursday evenings of July 10, 17, 24 and 31.

Instructor Dr. Robert Lackey said the activity is designed to teach participants current information on area personal safety hazards.

Participants will learn avoidance tactics in order to escape contact with these hazards. And, if confronted directly, participants will have a non-lethal basic skill-set designed to enable escaping to a safe distance. There will also be discussion of tasers, pepper spray and the defensive use of canes and umbrellas. The activity will be held from 7-9 p.m. in Wellness Center Room 143.

To enroll, a registration form and liability release form is located on the Continuing Education website (<http://www.swosu.edu/administration/osp/ce/forms.asp>). The forms, along with the $39 payment, can be turned in to the Office of Sponsored Programs (Administration Building 201).

For questions, contact Dr. Yolanda Carr at (580) 774-7010 or by email at yolanda.carr@swosu.eduEMAIL.

Southwestern wins academic bowl title

Southwestern Oklahoma State University's "Mind Games" team in Weatherford won the 2012-13 grand championship title on May 26 with a 400-360 win over Redlands Community College.

SWOSU won the 2013 spring semester title and Redlands won the 2012 fall semester tourney to set up the grand championship contest. For winning the finals, SWOSU won $5,000 in scholarship money to run SWOSU's total to $18,000 for the spring semester.

Mind Games is an Oklahoma academic challenge competition, hosted by Jenifer Reynolds, and aired weekly on KSBI-TV in Oklahoma City. SWOSU has fared well in the competition since it began in 2011. SWOSU won the 2012 spring title, finished runnerup in 2012 fall, won the 2013 spring title and now has won the grand title for 2012-13.

Members of the SWOSU team are: Zeke Mills, Springfield MO; Connor Holland, Duncan; Mackenzie Bergagnini, Ponca City; Will Robinson, Canton; and Keegan Coon of Davenport. Coach of the SWOSU team is Dr.

Fred Gates.

Sixteen Oklahoma colleges and universities competed this spring, including Cameron, University of Central Oklahoma, Southern Nazarene, Rogers State, Northwestern, East Central, Northeastern State, Southeastern, Southwestern Christian, Tulsa Community College, Rose State, OSU/OKC, Northern Oklahoma and Connors State.

Making possible the scholarship money for the university teams are The Chickasaw Nation and Oklahoma Energy Resources

The Southwestern

THE SOUTHWESTERN is the student newspaper of Southwestern Oklahoma State University. It is published every Wednesday during the fall and spring semesters, except during holidays and finals week. Students in the editing class serve as section editors, and students in the news gathering and reporting class serve as writers.

The editorial board meets every Wednesday at 2:00 p.m. in the journalism lab, Campbell 211.

THE SOUTHWESTERN encourages comments from the student body, faculty, and administration in the form of letters to the editor. All letters must include a name for consideration; however, the name may be withheld upon request.

The opinions expressed within signed editorials are the opinions of the writers; the opinions expressed in unsigned, boxed editorials are the opinion of the staff. Neither is necessarily the opinion of the university administration, staff or faculty.

Simmons honored by College of Pharmacy

Southwestern Oklahoma State University graduate Nelson M. Sims of Key Largo (FL) was recently honored by the SWOSU College of Pharmacy in Weatherford.

Sims, a 1971 graduate, was awarded the Dean's Distinguished Service Award for extraordinary service activities dedicated to pharmacy and SWOSU.

Originally from Watonga, he and his wife, Janie, also a graduate of SWOSU, have been loyal and faithful supporters of the university for many years.

Sims has had a distinguished record of service to the pharmaceutical industry. He served as a corporate executive with Eli Lilly for 29 years prior to his retirement in 2001. Sims served as president of Eli Lilly Canada from 1991 to 1999. In Canada, he also served as chairman of the board for the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association. From 2003 to 2005, Sims was the president and CEO of Novavax, a biotechnology company.

He remains active in the pharmaceutical industry serving as an advisor and director for biotechnology company boards. Sims also serves on the Southwestern Oklahoma State University Foundation Board of Directors.

Tech Track program offers one of three nationwide courses

A pilot program offered in Oklahoma and in just two other places in the nation will give middle school girls the opportunity to build a mobile app through a course designed by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT).

As part of the Tech Trek Math and Science Camps, the App Inventor curriculum will be offered in July at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford; the University of California, Santa Barbara; and the University of Alabama, Huntsville. The curriculum is made possible, thanks to an $84,000 grant from Verizon.

Each summer, members of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) host weeklong camps for middle school girls. The three camps that will pilot the App Inventor course were announced at the White House Science Fair in May. This year's fair focused on women and girls as part of President Barack Obama's ongoing commitment to get underrepresented groups excited about Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM).

The campers, who will enter eighth grade this fall, will learn app design, basic programming skills and the App Inventor tool. Through the Verizon grant, MIT trained Tech Trek instructors during the month of June to teach the course. In addition, they will provide assistance during the camps to ensure flawless implementation. To reduce costs, one set of tablets will be shared among the camps. SWOSU School of Business and Technology Instructor Lisa Friesen and Bar-S Computer Scientist Intern Rachel Hurt will lead Tech Trek at SWOSU campers through the computer science core curriculum.

"We are excited to be part of such a fascinating camp that can support girls in becoming our future doctors, scientists, mathematicians, engineers, computer scientists, and anything else they set their mind towards," Hurt said. "We are happy to offer encouragement and give them a glimpse of what their future may hold."

Tech Trek got its start 15 years ago when AAUW of California member Marie Wolbach applied for an AAUW Community Action Grant to open a science camp for girls on the Stanford University campus. The program grew to multiple sites in California, and since 2012, AAUW expanded the program's reach to seven additional states. This is the second year for Tech Trek at SWOSU, thanks to the support of AAUW, Verizon and other generous donors.

Tech Trek at SWOSU will take place July 13-19. For more information, see the camp website <http://techtrek-ok.aauw.net/> or contact Camp Director Lisa Appeddu at 580-774-3148 or lisa.appeddu@swosu.edu. The public is invited to see the campers in action on Thursday, July 17, but an RSVP is requested.

Southwestern Oklahoma State University School of Business and Technology Instructor Lisa Friesen (left) and Bar-S Computer Scientist Intern Rachel Hurt (right) will pilot the MIT App Inventor course at SWOSU during the Tech Trek Math and Science Camp planned July 13-19 on the Weatherford campus. The course is supported by a Verizon grant.

Three golfers win awards

The Women's Golf Coaches Association (WGCA) recently announced their 2014 All-American Scholars for Division I, II & III with 664 women's collegiate golfers recognized with this prestigious honor. A trio of SWOSU seniors garnered the award as Ashlynn Hall, Jessica Heard and Victoria Dobbie were each honored by the WGCA.

Heard (Clinton, Okla.) earns the honor for the third straight season while Hall (Mesa, Ariz.) and Dobbie (McKinley, Texas) are both first-time honorees by the WGCA. The trio helped lead the Lady Bulldogs to a third-place finish at the Great American Conference Championships and a second-place finish at the NCAA Division II Super Regional, earning the team its first-ever berth into the NCAA Division II Championships, where they finished 12th.

The criteria for selection to the All-American Scholar Team are some of the most stringent in all of college athletics with a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.50 required to be chosen.

SWOSU athletes honored at Night of Champions

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. – Four senior student-athletes from Southwestern were honored at the Great American Conference's Night of Champions.

The event, held at the Marriott in Little Rock, brought together the best and brightest from the GAC for one final look back at the 2013-14 season.

Prior to the ceremony, a video from the GAC Sports Network recapping the championship events from the past year was played. Included in the video was the 2013 GAC Soccer Championship, which was hosted by SWOSU and won by the Bulldogs for the second straight season, and the 2014 GAC Women's Basketball Championship, won by the Lady Bulldogs for the second time in three seasons after upsetting No. 2 Harding 78-74.

GAC Commissioner Will Prewitt then presented each nominee with a plaque to commemorate their accomplishments of the past year. Nominees from SWOSU included Rod Camphor (Male Athlete of the Year), Michelle Fisher (Female Athlete of the Year), Ryan Corbin (Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year) and Jessica Heard (Female Scholar-Athlete of the Year).

Bringing home the hardware were Athletes of the Year Kevin Rodgers (Henderson State) and Rebecka Surtevall (Arkansas Tech) while Rodgers doubled up with the Scholar-Athlete of the Year and Kristen Celsor of Harding claimed the Female Scholar-Athlete award.

Also announced at the banquet were spring sports sportsmanship awards and the SWOSU Women's Golf team earned the award for the spring season. The GAC's Student-Athlete Advisory Committee initiated a sportsmanship award to be presented for all team sports. Coach Brad Fleetwood and the Lady Bulldogs will receive a banner similar to the one presented to GAC Tournament championship winners. The winners of the team sportsmanship awards are chosen by league officials and coaches based on a point system.

"These awards emphasize the NCAA Division II focus on sportsmanship and game environment," Commissioner Prewitt said upon the announcement of the spring honors. "We could not be prouder of what these programs have put forth on the field and in ways that aren't necessarily reflected in the outcome."

The night was capped off with the GAC All-Sports Championship trophy, which was presented to Arkansas Tech for the third straight year. SWOSU finished third in the all-sports standings, matching their highest finish in the standings.

Kimzey leads rodeo team at CNFR

A strong showing in the final two rounds boosted SWOSU's Sage Kimzey to second place in bull riding as he helped the Bulldog men's team to a sixth-place finish at the College National Finals Rodeo (CNFR), which concluded on Saturday night in Casper.

After getting bucked off in the second round, Kimzey needed a qualifying ride in the third round to assure himself of a spot in the short go and he came through and scored an 82.5 to finish fourth in the round. Kimzey followed that up on Saturday with a ride of 85 points, taking second place in the short round to finish as the national runner-up in the event after a fourth-place finish last season as a freshman.

Mickey Andrews also made it to the short round in bull riding following a 77.5-point ride that placed him seventh in the third round. It turned out to be Andrews' only ride of the week, but it was good enough for him to finish 12th nationally in the event.

Kyle Hay was the only Bulldog to win a round during the week when his time of 8.2 seconds topped the field in the third round of tie down roping.

The time, however, was not enough to lift Hay to the short round in the event.

The Bulldogs finished sixth as a team with 430.0 points, within 35 points of a top-five team finish. The sixth-place finish is the highest for the SWOSU men's team since they took third at the CNFR in 2006.

SWOSU finished 15th in the women's team standings after having just one cowgirl, Emily Miller, advance to the short round of their event. Miller reached the short go in goat tying, but her time of 12.1 seconds in the round dropped her to 11th in the event. Miller also participated in barrel racing during the CNFR, finishing second in the third round and 15th overall in the event, and she tied for fifth in the women's all-around standings.

A banner year comes to a close for the Bulldogs, who combined for 11 rodeo wins during the 2013-14 season. In three seasons under Head Coach Mike Visnieski, SWOSU has four team finishes in the top ten at the CNFR and six individual top-ten finishers. Additionally, the women's team has won the Central Plains Region for three straight seasons while the Bulldogs have accumulated 16 individual region champions in that three-year span.

IT'S A NEW APP. IF IT DETECTS A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF SMOKE IN THE AIR, IT AUTOMATICALLY CALLS FOR PIZZA.
